

Elos Medtech is a leading development and strategic production partner in medical technology. The business is conducted within three business areas – Dental, Orthopedics and Life Science. Elos Medtech specializes in the development and manufacture of medical technology products such as implants and surgical instruments. The customers are medical technology companies that operate internationally. The group has operations in Sweden, Denmark, China and the USA and the head office is in Gothenburg, Sweden. We have a turnover of approximately SEK 850 million and have more than 650 employees worldwide. Elos Medtech has been listed on NASDAQ OMX Stockholm AB since 1989.

We are looking for

Director of Operations to Elos Medtech in Tianjin

We are looking for a highly qualified and independent candidate to lead day to day operations at Elos Medtech Tianjin site, achieving daily delivery to customers at required quality, time, and quantity. Work and improve efficiency with continuous improvements, set KPI's and challenge targets and goals.

Overall scope

Support Therapeutic Division and driving operational excellence activities on site, capacity planning, overall responsibility of project transferring, manufacturing planning, operation processes & optimize the production flow, continuous improvement, site quality compliance, stock management and logistics.

Policy compliance & regulatory

Directs and oversees operational efforts to ensure compliance with company policies and practices as well as external regulatory agencies

Operational excellence

- Lead day to day operations including appropriate arrangements of all related resources, organizing operation capacities, to achieve daily goals with deliveries in the most efficient way.
- Support Therapeutic division enhancing the continuous improvement culture, mindset and awareness on site, lead continuous improvements events and execute, aim to drive improvement activities focus on flow, overall efficiency, safety, and quality.
- Accountable for operations performance, coordinate and close collaboration with Supply Chain / technical / QA departments, raising problems, identifying, and closing process gaps, strong teamwork with departments moving the needle to fulfill short and long-term targets.
- Foster a lean culture on site, facilitate lean activities (5S, kaizen, good idea generation etc.,).

Digital transformation

Implement digital transformation strategy on site, coordinate with Technical department on automation projects and additional and or new processes establishment.

Leadership & communication

- With high integrity and act as a role model for Elos Medtech, in line with company core values. Building an open, fair, respecting and collaborated atmosphere at site.
- Ensure effective and timely communication between managers, departments, cross functional.
- Empowering, engaging, developing teamwork and communication.

Qualification

- Bachelor's degree and above, 10 years MNC operational working experiences, minimum 8 years in production or operation management role, experienced in Medical device industry is preferred.
- Familiar with ISO 9000/ISO 13485 quality system, Quality management capability and quality awareness is required
- Experiences with CNC, machining processes
- Excellent communication, negotiation, problem solving and decision-making skills, strong influence, coaching, analysis skills
- A good team player, and communicate good both verbally and in writing in English
- Building a Lean culture experience is preferable

Application

Apply with CV and personal letter by 2023-02-28:

Anna Wang, HR Manager, email: xi.wang@elosmedtech.com

We offer

You become part of an established company that offers products of the best quality. Our company culture is based on a set of strong core values: Passionate, Trustworthy, Result-oriented, Together. These values guide us in our day-to-day business and create unity across our global sites. The core values shape how we interact with each other, with our customers and with society. We live by our core values.

We attach great importance to your personality and offer varied and challenging work in an exciting and dynamic business.

You can read more about us on our website: www.elosmedtech.com

